DINNER TO HON. JOHN R. LYNCH.

the Shoestring District, Hon. John R. Lynch, of Mississippi, was the re-cipient of a complimentary dinner tendered by Milton M. Holland, esq. The affair was in all re-spects most brilliant and entertaining. Present at the table, besides the best and honored guest, were Register of the Treasury B. K. Bruce, Pro-fessor J. M. Gregory, of Howard University; George H. Richardson, editor of the Propie's Advector.
Professor Richard T. Greener, of Bouth Carolina;
Dr. Oliver Atwood, of Illinois; Ex-Congressman and contestant Robert Smalls, of South Carolina;
D. W. Atwood of One Transport D. W. Atwood, of Ohio; Hon. Samuel Lee, of South Carolina, contestant for seat in the present House; Dr. John R. Francis, of the District of Columbia; William H. Smith, esq., librarian of the House of Representatives: Captain C. A. Fleetwood, of Wa-hington Cadets; Mr. David Messer, and Rev. William Warring, of Orito. After dinner speeches were made by M. M. Holland, Hon. J. R. Lynch, Were made by M. M. Holland, Hon. J. R. Lynob, G. I. Richardson, Professor Greener, Captain Fleetwood, Hon. B. K. Bruce, Hon. Robert Smalls, William H. Smith, Rev. Waring, and Hon. Sumuel Lee. Letters of regret were read from Hon. Fred Douglass, Collector John F. Cock, Henry Johnson, esq. Bishop Brown, and Hou. John H. Smythe, Minister to Liberia. The reading of the LETTER OF HON. FRED DOUGLASS was a signal of hearty and continued applause. The speeches which followed were of a very high order, tauching questions of vital importance to he colored people of the United States. The speeches of Messrs. Lynch, Greener, Waring, Smith, Bruce, and Holland, were particularly interesting. Mr. Holland, in welcoming his guest, said that he felt it not only a duty but a great pleasure to do honor to the man who had done monor to himself and to his race; that he felt it not only be used to be under the felt of the man who had done nonor to himself and to his race; that he felt in the success of one who had made so gallant a fight for the rights which belonged to him, not as a colored man, but as an American citizer; that the or the rights which belonged to him, not as a col-ned man, but as an American citizen; that the light plane upon which he had based his claims laddened the heart of every intelligent man of the race and made him (Lynch) doubly dear as to nowledging the compliment paid him, dwelt t length upon the rapid and substantial progress ande by the colored people of the country, and specally at the South, Rev. Waring spoke in a tery hopful strain as to the flure of the race in te mont, social, and intellectual development. Its moral, social, and intellectual development.

REGIFTER ENCLE GAVE A GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION of the contest through which Mr. Lynch passed in his last canvass for Congress, and said that when the enemies of the race had publicly declared that no colored man could be elected from Mississippi all eyes were turned to John R. Lynch as the man who had the intelligence, heroam, and perseveraces to make the light, and the result was a full-fledged colored Congressionan from the Shucstring District. Professor Greener paid a high tribute to Mr. Lynch, and spoke with his usual cloquence and zeal in behalf of the race. Mr. Smith, whose observation is very extended in that no colored man in Congress had wielded more influence and commanded more respect for the race than Mr. Lynch.

Frank Midgley and his steeplechasers will also strive, and the other stables that have been wintered "down by the sounding sea" at Long Branch and Sheepshead Bay are expected by Wednesdey. Mr. Reed's horses, now at Pimilico, will be sent over early in the week. and by the middle of the current week there will

On Saturday, before the Chief Justice, the answer of Mr. W. D. Crampsey in the Blanche Strait swer of Mr. W. D. Crampsey in the Blanche Strait habets for on a case was heard. Mr. E. B. Hay appeared for the father, Mr. N. A. Strait, and Mr. F. Miller for the respondent. Mr. Crampsey, in his answer, admits the marriage of his deceased daughter to Strait; that by the decree of divorce the custody of the daughter was given to her mother, who, on her deathed, requested the respondent to provide for his grandchild. He claims that the girl, being now iffeen, is capable of selecting her own guardian. He denies that she is restrained against her free will, and sileges that she remains with the respondent of her own free will. Further, he alleges that by the decree of divorce the petitioner was deprived of his rights as the natural guardian of his child. After hearing the arguments the Chief Justice took the papers and reserved his decision until next Saturday.
